INTRODUCTION

In 1978 Sylvia Ransom produced an annotated list of Major Microform Collections in the Main Library. Before we updated that list we asked Jennifer Beale to do a feasibility study for the production of a guide capable of frequent updating, and of machine-readable conversion. She was asked to consider a format which would respond to Reference and Audio-visual staffs' needs, not only for more detailed information about the content of the collections, including a subject approach, but also about the bibliographic aids used to access them, as most collections were not analysed in the catalogue. Meanwhile a brief updated list of the Library's uncatalogued collections, including microforms, was produced as Special Collections in the Main Library, Monash University, in early 1984.

Using Ms. Beale's guidelines Rosemary McGinnes has researched the collections and the review literature, and compiled A Guide to Microform Research Collections in the Main Library, Monash University in a format which reflects the perceived information needs of users. Her painstaking documentation of the bibliographies and indexes which provide bibliographic access and control of the collections make the guide invaluable.

This guide lists all the significant research collections in microform, held in the Humanities and Social Sciences Library but does not include some important sets published serially such as the United Nations Official Records nor individual journals such as The Bulletin.

Some of the collections have been individually analysed in the Main Library's catalogues and this has been indicated in the notes section as appropriate.

The listing has been arranged alphabetically by title. The index has also been alphabetically arranged for access by title or subject with references to item numbers. The subject headings used are drawn from the Library of Congress Subject Headings.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Many persons have been most helpful in the completion of this guide. I would like to specially thank Tricia Naish for her support throughout the project, particularly for the time spent in discussion about format, inclusions and indexing. I would also like to thank Iris Carydias for the punching of this project into the word processor and the Reference librarians whose subject expertise was invaluable in the areas of the subject indexing and specialised bibliographies. Finally, I would to thank Carmel Linehan for her help with proof reading and the final production of the guide.

SERIES	(American Little Magazines)
FORMAT	Microfilm 4808 11 reels
SUBJECT	Little magazines - United States United States Civilization - 20th Century-Sources
TIME PERIOD	1910-
COUNTRY	United States
TYPE	Literature
SCOPE & CONTENT	The function of the literary little magazine, is the publication of material that is unlikely to be acceptable for commercial periodicals because of its limited appeal. The little magazine history since its beginning in England and America shows that both the highest and the lowest points of modern literary production dot the little-mag landscape. These magazines are important primary sources for contemporary literature.

ARRANGEMENT & BIBLIOGRAPHIC CONTROL

Each publisher has been treated separately. Each collection contains a new introduction and a guide to the arrangement of the material on the film. A list of the contents of all the reels in a particular collection is included at the beginning of each reel in that collection. The archives of each publisher have been indexed, usually in a separate printed volume (see below) with the exception of those for Elkin Mathews and George Routledge which are indexed on the microfilm. Lists of the publications of the firm of Richard Bentley are provided on microfiche, together with two printed indexes (see below).

ARCHIVES OF THE BRITISH LIBERAL PARTY. SERIES I: PAMPHLETS AND LEAFLETS.

Hassocks, England: Harvester Press, 1978-

FORMAT                      Microfiche 2557
                              107 fiche

SUBJECT                     Great Britain - Politics and government - 20th century -
                              Sources
                              Liberal Party (Great Britain)

TIME PERIOD                1884-1911

COUNTRY                    Britain

SCOPE & CONTENT

The British Liberal Party was the dominant force in British politics for several periods in the Victorian age - and even when out of office it was led by giants. William Ewart Gladstone, four times Liberal Prime Minister, is, with the exception of Queen Victoria herself, perhaps the best-known Victorian.

This collection comprises the pamphlets and leaflets of the British Liberal Party between 1884-1911. During this crucial period in the party's history there were five Liberal Administrations, two of them led by Gladstone. In addition the Earl of Rosebery was Prime Minister in 1894-95, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman in 1905-08, and Herbert Asquith between 1908-15.

ARRANGEMENT & BIBLIOGRAPHIC CONTROL

A complete listing of the documents together with an Author Index appear on fiche 1 and 2. (Photocopied at AV Ref 2557). All documents on the listing have been numbered with a code indicating the year of issue and the number of each document within the year of issue. The contents of each year is reproduced at the beginning of each specific year.

BOOK PROSPECTUSES BEFORE 1801 IN THE GOUGH COLLECTION, BODLEIAN LIBRARY, OXFORD.

Oxford: Oxford Microform Publications, 1980

SOURCE	Bodleian Library, Oxford.
FORMAT	Microfiche 2522A 11 fiche
SUBJECT	Gough, Richard, 1735-1809 - Library Bodleian Library
TIME PERIOD	1680-1800
COUNTRY	Britain
TYPE	Book prospectuses

SCOPE & CONTENT

Richard Gough was a collector of books, papers, prints, coins and medals. An antiquary and topographer he was obliged to assemble for himself the materials which he needed for his work because libraries made no provision in this field. Gough's collection of book prospectuses is unique because it relates to a single subject when it was at the height of its popularity and for the period after about 1780, is comprehensive.

ARRANGEMENT & BIBLIOGRAPHIC CONTROL

The collection can be accessed by means of either a printed catalogue (see below) or indexes on the last fiche of the set. It is indexed by, authors, editors, translators, illustrators and titles, names of members of the book trade or topography, reflecting the contents of the Gough Collection.

Bodleian Library
Book industries and trade - England - History

TIME PERIOD 1610-1800

COUNTRY Britain

TYPE Book prospectuses

SCOPE & CONTENT The prospectuses, put out by bookseller/publishers in order to gather enough assurances of financial support by subscribers to enable the publication of a work to be undertaken economically, have long been recognised as an important source for historians of the book trade.

The John Johnson Collection (assembled & categorised by a former University Printer) contains an important group of these stray flysheets and sample texts, which occupy a special place in the history of the seventeenth and eighteenth century trade.

REVIEWS Microform Review 11 (3) : 187-188, 1982

ARRANGEMENT & BIBLIOGRAPHIC CONTROL

As far as possible the prospectuses are arranged in chronological order. The printed catalogue (see below) contains a brief history of this form of publisher's advertising, followed by a chronological listing of the collection, with additional bibliographical particulars. Each fiche has in its last two frames a contents list and an index to titles, authors and translators. The final fiche has general indexes of authors, editors, etc. and of book trade personnel arranged by town.

SCOPE & CONTENT

The State Papers Domestic are the complete surviving records of the great Department of State and richly document the wide scope of its business; the administration and constitution of England, trade and shipping, naval and military affairs, social and religious life, crime, rebellion and discontent. These records also serve to illustrate the personal style of the contemporary Secretaries of State, who with the Chancellor of the Exchequer, controlled almost the entire life of the nation in a closely integrated policy.

EARLY BRITISH FICTION: PRE 1750

Woodbridge, Conn.: Research Publications in cooperation with the British Library, 1978.

FORMAT	Microfilm 5048 53 reels
--------	----------------------------

SUBJECT	English fiction - 18th century - Bibliography
TIME PERIOD	1700-1750
COUNTRY	Britain
TYPE	Novels
SCOPE & CONTENT	This collection combines the scattered holdings of the major collections of early British fiction into one of about 600 titles published between 1700 and 1750. At first glance many of the narratives might not seem to be works of fiction. During the first half of the eighteenth century people disapproved of invented stories, hence the numerous histories, lives, memoirs, voyages and travels published at the time.

ARRANGEMENT & BIBLIOGRAPHIC CONTROL

The guide to the microfilm collection is a detailed bibliography and reel index. The entries are arranged alphabetically by main entry, which is the same order the books appear on microfilm. To locate material, the user should find its listing by author (or title) and note the reel number.

SUBJECT	English literature - Middle English, 1100-1500 English literature - Early Modern, 1500-1700 Pollard, Alfred William Redgrave, Gilbert Richard
TIME PERIOD	1475-1640
COUNTRY	Britain
TYPE	Books

SCOPE & CONTENT

This microfilm collection will contain nearly all of the 26,5000 titles listed in A.W.Pollard and G.R.Redgrave's Short-Title Catalogue beginning with the first book published in English, Caxton's translation of the Recuyell of the Historys of Troye and continuing through the age of Spenser, Shakespeare, Bacon, More, Erasmus and James I. The series fully documents the magnificent English Renaissance, which witnessed the rebirth of classical humanism, the broadening of the known world and the spread of printing and education.

SCOPE & CONTENT

The series of Colonial Reports - Annual was published by the British Colonial Office from 1889 to 1938. An annual report for each of the crown colonies and protectorates under the administration of the Colonial Office was produced; the self-governing colonies were excluded. Though usually brief, the reports offer a convenient annual overview of the affairs of each colony as perceived by the administration of that colony. Sections on agriculture, education, finances, justice, labor, legislation, religion and general matters are usually to be found.

SCOPE & CONTENT

The Commons Journals have always been compiled by or on behalf of the Clerk of the House. The texts preserved in the official series fall into two distinct categories:

- (a) Journals written rapidly while business proceeded and
- (b) neatly written journals compiled after the sitting.

These manuscript journals were kept until the end of 1833.

In 1742 the House resolved that the journals should be printed and by the end of 1762 the Journals to date had been printed in 28 volumes. From 1762 the volumes were generally printed concurrently with the proceedings they recorded. Indexes are included with each volume.

This collection is a microcard copy of the printed journals.

INDEXES, BIBLIOGRAPHIES ETC.

An annual index on microcard is available for each volume. They are filed at the end of each microcard volume.

TYPE	Reports
SCOPE & CONTENT	Between 1940 and 1944 the Ministry of Information in Britain carried out regular and detailed investigations into the opinions, morale and feelings of the British People during World War II. The Home Intelligence unit of the Ministry compiled daily reports on the subject between May and September 1940 and weekly reports from October 1940 until the end of 1944. The aim of the reports was to enable government to keep in touch with the anxieties and enthusiasms of the millions of people who were at the receiving end of policy making and upon whose efforts victory depended. The subjects covered included reactions to war news and to the presentation of the war by politicians, the press and the BBC; opinion about evacuation, housing, rationing, strikes and the central theme of morale.

SCOPE & CONTENT

HRAF is a non-profit research corporation sponsored and controlled by twenty-four major universities and research institutions. Its organization and implementation dates back to the thirties.

The information in the HRAF files is organized by ethnic and political units. The classification of these units (including extinct and historical peoples) follows the Outline of World Cultures (latest revised edition), in which they are arranged by eight major geographical areas. The inventory of cultures in the Outline of World Cultures is the universe from which societies are selected for inclusion in the Area Files. The primary objective in the selection of these societies has been to build an adequate sample of the world's cultures for comparative research. Other considerations for the inclusion of a culture are the quality and reliability of the information available in the literature, the amount of translation from foreign languages that is involved and the special interests of the member institutions.

REVIEWS

Dodson, S.C. Microform Research Collections: A Guide. Mansell Information Publishing. London. 1978. p.164

ARRANGEMENT & BIBLIOGRAPHIC CONTROL

HRAF files are arranged according to the classification scheme developed by HRAF and described in the Outline of World Cultures (see below). The societies and cultures of the world are enumerated and classified by geographical areas and as additional cultures are added to the files these cultures are incorporated into the classification scheme.

Within each culture or society, the information available is classified according to the system described in the Outline of Cultural Materials (see below).

The two manuals already mentioned, together with Lagace's guide (see below) constitute the three key guides to the files. Additional bibliographies, etc. are listed below.

SCOPE & CONTENT	Over 25,000 published and unpublished League of Nations documents become readily available with the publication of this microform collection. Many have never been available before. All those that were not sold by the League have never even been indexed before, a wealth of resource material from which scholars have been barred by the lack of access tools. The documents of the League, since they reflect all the activities and areas of interest of the League, provide basic resource material in a variety of subjects.

ARRANGEMENT & BIBLIOGRAPHIC CONTROL

The collection is grouped into documents, serial publications and a few miscellaneous materials. Approximately 25,000 documents of the Assembly, the Council and the circular letters of the Secretary General's Office were physically sorted into the eighteen subject categories as designated by the League. The material was then filmed in chronological order by year within each category. Assembly and Council documents and circular letters of the Secretary General's Office are grouped by number within each year. In order to provide access to the documents, each document was read and an abstract prepared. The abstracts are printed in the same order as the documents appear on the microfilm and have been published as a three-volume guide to the documents section (see below).

Serial publications are treated as individual units with their own reel number series. Periodicals have their own internal indexes.

Miscellaneous documents include a very rare set of minutes of the directors' meetings and the reports of the Mandatory Powers to the League of Nations published by the Mandatory Powers.

ARRANGEMENT & BIBLIOGRAPHIC CONTROL

Titles in the collection are described in Historical Accounting Literature (see below)

Collection has been divided into groups, for the most part by the language in which the book was originally published, although there is also a group devoted to "Special Subjects." Within each group the arrangement is chronological so that sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth and nineteenth century books can be purchased separately if desired. A list of titles included is found at the beginning of each reel.

A printed index accompanies the set (see below).
Box labels give reel contents.

TYPE Newspaper cuttings, pamphlets, circulars, speeches.

SCOPE & CONTENT The Council of Foreign Bondholders was formed in 1868 to protect the interests of British holders of foreign bonds. In the early '70's the Council's officers began systematically to collect & retain printed material, primarily newspaper cuttings to supply basic information to Council negotiators & to give background material for area reports printed in the Annual Report of the Council. The cuttings are in English taken from British daily newspapers, the weeklies and the financial press. This is supplemented by material from United States newspapers and other local, English language newspapers. Few newspapers of the period were indexed so the labour of extracting material was formidable.

TYPE Pamphlets

SCOPE & CONTENT The Pamphleteer can be a rich source for the student of the early 19th century, even though it could not properly be considered one of the great source collections of the time. Published intermittently as a commercial venture by Abraham John Valpy, it brought together such materials as Valpy believed would attract a wide audience:

political tracts and Parliamentary speeches, theological essays, pamphlets on economic and social reform issues.

FORMAT	Microfilm 5065 89 reels
SUBJECT	Afro-Americans - Education Afro-Americans - Race Identity Afro-Americans - Civil Rights - History - Sources Black Nationalism - United States - History Du Bois, William Edward Burghardt
TIME PERIOD	1877-1963
COUNTRY	United States
TYPE	Personal collection including correspondence, speeches, articles, pamphlets...
SCOPE & CONTENT	The papers of W.E.B. Du Bois on microfilm contains Du Bois' principal correspondence dating from 1877 to his death in 1963. During his lifetime Du Bois retained his incoming letters, copies of his outgoing letters and files of his speeches, articles, books and other manuscripts. While these files were most complete for the middle and later stages of his life, all periods are represented to some degree. The files, containing only a few items from his youth, become more plentiful for his student days in the 1880's and 1890's and the commencement of his career as scholar and educator in the 1890's and 1900's. They are at their fullest during his period with the NAACP as editor of The Crisis , 1910-1934 and they remain nearly as abundant for the last thirty years of his life.

TYPE Pamphlets, Press releases

SCOPE & CONTENT The Radical Right and Patriotic Movements in Britain is a non-sectarian, non-Party project. Its importance lies in collecting, indexing and reproducing material which no library in the world can offer its readers. Only a small proportion of these publications have been preserved elsewhere. The collection has been created with the active assistance of the groups and movements. Since 1945 the four most important 'Radical Right' groups in modern Britain have been the Bow Group, the Monday Club, Pressure for Economic and Social Toryism and Aims of Industry.

SUBJECT	Labour and labouring classes - Great Britain - Periodicals Radicalism - Great Britain - Periodicals Social Problems - Periodicals Socialism - Periodicals Suffrage - Great Britain - Periodicals
TIME PERIOD	1790-1890
COUNTRY	Britain
TYPE	Newspapers, Periodicals
SCOPE & CONTENT	Three criteria were used for the inclusion of titles in this collection. First were those periodicals produced by an organised body of wage-earners. The second category includes periodicals 'produced in the avowed interest of the working class - where that class was thought to have interests exclusive of the interests of other social classes or actively opposed to them'. The third category includes material 'produced for wage-earners by members of other social classes who sought to improve them, instruct them or entertain them'. Through these categories, the editors have tried to identify periodicals which 'anticipated what were subsequently to become the demands of organised labour'.

FORMAT	Microfilm 597 reels
SUBJECT	United States - Politics & government Parliamentary practice - United States
TIME PERIOD	1873-1972
COUNTRY	United States
TYPE	Debates & Proceedings

SCOPE & CONTENT

The Congressional Record is the official journal of U.S. Congress in which the debates and proceedings of the Congress are printed. It is issued daily while Congress is in session. The Congressional Record includes speeches and articles read on the floors of either house, voting records and materials inserted by request by legislators. It also includes Extension of Remarks and Daily Digest sections. Information irrelevant to the day's proceedings are printed in the Extension of Remarks. Reprints of newspaper articles, telegrams and excerpts from periodicals are included. The Daily Digest section of the Congressional Record summarizes bills introduced, resolutions agreed upon and committee hearings.

ARRANGEMENT & BIBLIOGRAPHIC CONTROL

The index to each volume of the congress follows the actual film of the congress itself. Reels containing indexes are clearly labelled on the boxes of the collection.
